What's Buzzin' This Week(s)

The Beatles. With the 50th anniversary release of Abbey Road and what would have been John Lennon's 97th birthday Oct. 9 (the day I'm writing this), the Fab Four are more talked about—and celebrated—than ever. If you had to make a Beatles Greatest Hits playlist, it would just be all of their albums in full. They were as perfect as a phone call to the Ukraine.

And if only two members of the original group can still record and tour as The Who (their new music sounds pretty great, by the way), why can't Paul and Ringo just go out there and be the Beatles? Or team up with Ian Anderson and tour as the Jethro Beatulls?

Paula and I went to the Destin Seafood Festival last weekend, and the Beachcomber Music Award winning RoshamBeatles were playing. I thought Editor Manson stops by artist Kelly Pierre's booth in HarborWalk Village to inform him he'll be on the cover of BEACHCOMBER. Which of these two fellas looks "genuinely" happy?

The Men and Women Who Make Beachcomber

Kelly Pierre (Cover) was born and raised in Southern Louisiana. His passion for art sparked at a young age—as a child, he spent lots of time sketching marine life from the deck of his family’s shrimping boat.

Mr. Pierre uses multiple mediums—oils, acrylics, clay, wood and metal—because he doesn’t believe in restricting the artistic process. His studio is located in HarborWalk Village, where he finds inspiration in the wildlife and beauty of the Gulf.

This issue’s cover art was selected as the 2019 Mattie Kelly Festival of the Arts poster contest winner and will be featured on the official posters, festival guides, t-shirts, and more.

Seagrove Beach resident Nikki Hedrick (The Pauseandplay.com Record Roundup) is a photographer and longtime Beachcomber contributor. She is the co-owner of 850 Music and Entertainment, and wears a few other hats, too. Nikki is currently up to her ears in beach wedding season and will soon be up to her ears with the 2019 Kite Film Fest.

Clay Jones (Cartoons) syndicates his cartoons daily to publications across the country. Clay was born in Fort Hood, Texas, and was raised in Louisiana, Illinois, California and Georgia. He currently lives in Fredericksburg, Virginia. His cartoons are featured on CNN and The Week’s Best Editorial Cartoons, and he was a finalist for the 2019 Herblock Prize.

it would be nifty if they did “When I’m Sixty-Four,” since Paula was celebrating her 64th birthday that weekend. Alas, they didn’t know that one, and the RoshamBeatles will not be mentioned in this publication again. Ever.

Jimmy Carter. America’s greatest ex-president, who is well into his 90s, took a fall recently. He was back to work the next day building houses with Habitat for Humanity. This is something to aspire to, as I’m in my early 50s and can’t change a light bulb if I’m even a smidge hungover.

Mr. Carter also prepared lunch for 300 volunteers, changed a flat tire on a supply truck, and climbed up a very tall tree to rescue a frightened kitty cat. I’m pretty sure he could kick Chuck Norris’ ass, too.

Bernie Sanders. The Vermont Senator and presidential hopeful suffered a heart attack, then promised he’d be up and ready for the Democratic debate the following week. When I had my “episode,” I had to take a whole month off from being funny.

Some of you wise guys would say I’m still on a break.

Joker. An unpleasant R-rated comic book movie about a psychopathic supervillain—just what America needs right now. Directed and co-written by a schmuck who says he can’t make comedy flicks anymore because of the political climate or some such similar nonsense.

Kangaroo Court. Presided over, of course, by the Honorable Judge Hippetty Hopper.

Fall Weather. Should be here by mid-to-late December. Be patient.

The Return of the Red Bar. This week, ground was broken on Hotz Avenue in Grayton Beach. The legendary South Walton establishment will rebuild and hopefully re-open by Memorial Day 2020. Which is great, because Dread Clampitt and the Red Bar Jazz Band need the gigs, man...

Contributing Editor Bruce Collier talks to The Red Bar’s Oli Petit in our Oct. 24 issue. Watch for it.

The Emerald Coast Is Hunkering Down. This time of year, the locals are preparing for that thing we all dread. Boarding up the windows. Dusting off the generators. Stocking up on bottled water and non-perishables.

But in spite of all these efforts, the Snowbirds are still coming.

Love,
Editor Manson

Shelter House Calls on Community for Food Pantry Support

In observance of Domestic Violence Awareness Month, Shelter House is hosting a community grocery drive to help stock the pantry for their emergency shelter. The home has been at or near capacity since early summer, with 37 adults and 25 children residing there within the past two months alone. Community support of in-kind food donations is encouraged to offset a grocery bill that has more than quadrupled over the prior fiscal year.

The community is encouraged to help by giving gift cards to grocery stores or by providing the following items:

- Canned Meats (Tuna, Chicken, Ham)
- Hamburger, Chicken or Tuna Helper
- Macaroni and Cheese
- Pasta and Sauces
- Rice
- Canned Vegetables
- Canned Soups
- Spaghetti-O's
- Ravioli

The top non-grocery need for the emergency shelter is laundry detergent, as survivors often arrive at the shelter with minimal clothing and must do laundry multiple times per week. Paper products such as toilet paper and paper towels are also encouraged.

Additionally, dog food for the on-site Kind Heart Kennel is a critical need for survivors who flee to the emergency shelter with their animals. This program was developed because victims may not otherwise end an abusive relationship for fear of what might happen to their pets if left behind.

Drop off items at Shelter House's main office at 16 Ferry Road SE in Fort Walton Beach during regular business hours. For this special community drive, donations can also be taken to Shelter House's outreach offices in Crestview and DeFuniak Springs. Local businesses that would like to become drop sites are encouraged to call 850-243-1201.

All of Shelter House's services are completely free and confidential. For more information, visit shelterhousenwfl.org.

IMPACT 100 Announces 2019 Grant Finalists

After reviewing funding requests from many nonprofit organizations in Okaloosa and Walton counties, IMPACT 100 of Northwest Florida announced 10 grant finalists for 2019. Representatives of the organizations were present at the announcement, as well as IMPACT 100 officers and members.

The finalists were selected from five focus areas—Arts & Culture, Education, Environment, Family, and Health & Recreation. At its November 3 Annual Meeting, IMPACT 100 members will hear presentations from each of the finalists and vote for this year's five $101,600 grant recipients. Since the conception of the organization in 2012, IMPACT 100 has awarded $2.7 million in grant awards.

The 2019 finalists include:

Heritage Museum of Northwest Florida (Arts & Culture), recognized for making cultural and historical themes and concepts for more accessible to the local and regional community.

Muscogee Nation of Florida, Inc. (Arts & Culture), whose Muscogee Nation of Florida Agri-Tourism Initiative completes a heritage center site to preserve the history of the Muscogee (Creek-Euchee) people and enable visitors and students to learn about the first Americans indigenous to the country.

AMIKids Emerald Coast (Education). The Vocational Training for At-Risk

Youth program proposes providing vocational training services for Okaloosa County residents ages 16-24 who did not complete high school.

IMPACT 100 CONTINUED...

Children in Crisis (Education). The Healing Impact project focuses on the more than 1,400 children in foster care per year in Okaloosa, Walton, Escambia and Santa Rosa counties. This project would enable CIC to construct a building to host ongoing parenting education necessary to help families to meet the needs of foster and adoptive families.

Choctawhatchee Basin Alliance (CBA) (Environment). Building a Better Bay: Improving Water Quality Through Community-Led Restoration supports a thriving tourism industry devoted to fishing, boating, and beachgoing; a high quality-of-life for locals; and healthy habitat for the native wildlife we love so much. Unfortunately, the bay suffers the effects of pollution and threatened water quality. Through this IMPACT 100 grant, the Choctawhatchee Basin Alliance will shape the building blocks of a better bay.

Panhandle Animal Welfare Society (PAWS) (Environment). A New Run on Life project entails the complete renovation of PAWS' Fort Walton Beach shelter dog runs. The desire is to provide a safe, healthy environment for the canines in their care. While remaining open to all admissions, this renovation will add space, provide safer quarantine, and help prevent the spread of disease and illness. It will also provide additional access to the public in order to promote and increase adoption numbers, enhance collaboration with community programs and support the new PAWS initiative of becoming a no-kill facility.

A Bed 4 Me Foundation (Family). A bed is a simple thing most of us take for granted, but it's a luxury to the children of the working poor in our community. Funds for the Big Impact on Big Dreams project would continue to meet this increasing need as well as a reliable all-weather vehicle to transport the beds and bedding to the families.

Crestview Area Shelter for the Homeless (CASH) (Family). Helping Hands Phase 2 / Crestview Area Shelter for the Homeless aims to provide a live-in facility for homeless individuals that provides safety and basic human living conditions. A person can only change and grow when these conditions are met. Phase 2 will empower those in need and support the necessary life changes leading to employment, housing and self-sufficiency.

ALONO Club of Fort Walton Beach, Inc. (Health & Recreation). 52 Beal: ALONO Club of Fort Walton Beach provides a safe, central place for 12-step and recovery meetings for alcoholic and addiction groups, and a supportive location for individuals and groups in recovery. There exists a need to renovate the ALONO facility—a renovation that would include the expansion of the meeting space available and modifications to provide handicap accessibility.

Destin Harvest, Inc. (Health & Recreation). For its Fortify Food Rescue project, Destin Harvest (DH) seeks support to upgrade its fleet of refrigerated trucks that capture daily food donations from 29 grocery stores and retailers in Destin, Santa Rosa Beach, Fort Walton Beach, DeFuniak Springs and Freeport. DH must upgrade its fleet of trucks to continue to distribute high-volume food donations and take on new stores. DH has already accumulated over $14,000 in repair bills this year alone.

Florida Gov. DeSantis Picked a Judge Who Has Never Been a Judge, But He Thinks the “Right” Way (Wink, Wink)

By Carl Hiaasen, Tribune Content Agency

“Special Agent” John MacIver is the new chief judge of Florida’s Division of Administrative Hearings, one of the most boring yet important agencies in government.

Only eight years out of law school, MacIver has never been a real judge.

However, it says right there on his resume that he’s a “reserve” special agent for the Florida Department of Lottery—a “sworn law enforcement officer with statewide jurisdiction to investigate and make arrests.”

You probably weren’t aware that Florida has a squad of sleuths who specialize in exposing scratch-off scams or counterfeit Ping Pong balls or...whatever. There is no mention in MacIver’s resume of the tricky cases he’s cracked.

But his special-agent moves aren’t what got him the job as the state’s top administrative judge. MacIver was hand-picked by Gov. Ron DeSantis and approved by the Cabinet for one reason: ideology.

He’s a conservative advocate for a meek and restricted judiciary. Actual experience in the judiciary can sometimes clutter such purist thinking, but MacIver assumes his powerful new post unburdened by real-life perspective.

There are 29 judges in the Division of Administrative Hearings, which handles a vast range of disputes involving government agencies, citizens, corporations and regulated industries—anything from a contested multimillion-dollar highway bid to a surgeon losing his license for amputating the wrong leg.

Your brain could go numb slogging through even 30 days of orders issued by the division, but the often-complex decisions impact public safety, healthcare, the environment and schools.

The judges who handle such cases are appointed by the governor. Michael Parrish, who had that job for 22 years, told the Tampa Bay Times that MacIver “does not appear to have anywhere near the qualifications to hold that position.”

MacIver has said he got booted from the Navy but turned his life around before entering law school at Northwestern University. After graduating in 2011, he worked for the National Rifle Association before becoming a government lawyer.

The political party in power usually tries to pack the courts, and MacIver soon became a political screener of potential judges for then-Gov. Rick Scott. When DeSantis took office, he kept MacIver on board while reshaping the state Supreme Court.

(MacIver was also one of the attorneys representing the governor in the controversial suspension of Broward Sheriff Scott Israel after the Parkland shooting.)

Although MacIver has spent little time in front of the bench, he can comfortably recite the preachings of the Federalist Society, an organization of judges and lawyers whose conservative legal views have become Republican gospel.

In his letter to the Cabinet asking to be named the chief administrative law judge, MacIver stated that over the last four years he has interviewed “hundreds of applicants vying for appointment to our state’s judiciary.”

Not all those applicants had experience as judges, but none of them could have had less than the guy who was interviewing them.

MacIver said his “singular goal” has been “to identify the applicant that best embodies the principle that judges must follow the law as written, interpreting the plain text by its commonly understood meaning.”

Here would be a good place to stop and try a little experiment. If you happen to have a copy of the Florida statute books handy, open a volume—any volume.

Within moments you’ll be mired in text that is the painful opposite of plain and commonly understood.

Northwestern doesn’t turn out many lawyers who are dummies, so MacIver is undoubtedly aware that his stated mission is a ruse. Our laws weren’t written by Dr. Seuss, and no amount of wishing will make them as easy to interpret as The Cat in the Hat.

MacIver’s true aim is to go after “activist” judges, which means judges who make decisions that conservative Republicans and their swampy corporate donors don’t like.

MacIver told Cabinet members he wants to improve “the culture of judicial philosophy” in his division. Again, that’s just code for imposing a political agenda.

He also seemed unhappy that administrative law judges are able to issue final orders, forcing state agencies to either obey them or appeal.

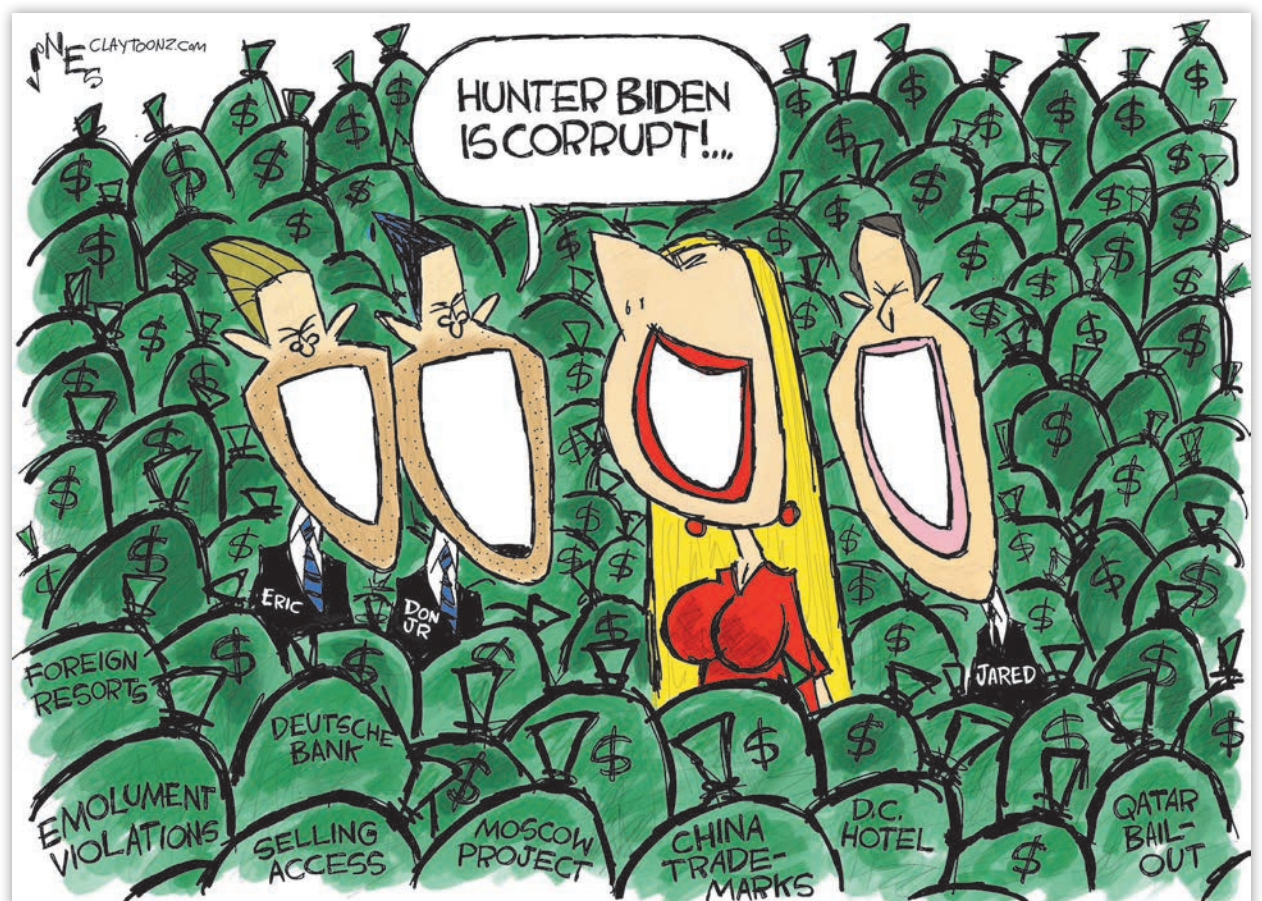

That’s how the Legislature purposely designed the process more than 40 years ago. A judge without the power to make an enforceable ruling would be like a basketball referee who’s not allowed to call a foul. What exactly is the point of being there?

It’s hard to believe that MacIver, the judicial philosopher, sought his new high-ranking position with the intent of diminishing its significance. Remember, this is a man with excitement in his blood.

A special agent, locked and loaded.

#itsgooderonguana – A Hurricane Dorian Relief Trip Report

By Eddie Morgan

Monday, September 23 – Wednesday, September 25

After weeks of planning, shopping for supplies and preparing the Papi for travel, Kevin Moak, Cole Wyatt and I departed Harbor Docks at 7 PM, starting our journey to Guana Cay. We would arrive in Venice, Florida, around 2 PM the following day. In Venice, we picked up Chris Brock—whose cousin Jamie Sweeting is a hostess at Harbor Docks, and has family in Hope Town on Elbow Cay—before departing for Stuart, Florida, via Lake Okeechobee, arriving around 4 PM Wednesday afternoon.

Thursday, September 26

Already overloaded, and now with seven additional passengers—Timmy Roberts his son Timothy (Marsh Harbour); Terri Roberts, her son Luke, and brother Bo (Guana Cay); Henry Evans and his son Jason (Cartersville, Georgia)—we left Stuart for our final crossing to Guana Cay.

After reaching the Abacos—around Cooperstown as we headed southeast—we could begin to see the destruction caused by Hurricane Dorian. It progressively looked worse until we arrived at the Guana Cay settlement around 2 PM, roughly 66 hours after we left Destin.

The view pulling into the harbor was breathtaking, the destruction far worse than any pictures or videos could do justice. We pulled alongside what was left of the loading dock at Orchid Bay Marina, and were greeted by many familiar faces who would help us unload all of the generators, tools, tarps, food and other supplies that were donated or purchased with monies that had been donated to our relief efforts.

After unloading—and giving some much-needed hugs—we tied up at one of only three remaining docks in the harbor, secured the boat, and checked in with the locals to make plans for the morning.

Friday, September 27

We awoke before dawn, checked in at the make-shift command center located in the Seaside Gospel Chapel, and headed off to the home of Jackie and Andy Sands (whose son Bronson is a cook at Harbor Docks) to help Andy repair his roof. None of us being roofers by trade, we leaned on the wisdom of Andy—who is one of Guana's only roofers—and Chris, who is a contractor in his home state of Michigan. We spent the day wrecking the old roof, replacing the rafters and plywood, and drying in one side of the roof before knocking off for the day.

Shortly after 6 PM, the doors opened and what unfolded was not unlike the dinner rush on a holiday weekend in Destin. An hour later and over 100 people served, we cleaned up, ate a little ourselves, and headed back to the boat.

Sunday, September 29

On Sundays, many of the locals take a much-needed break, so we took the chance to check out our home on Guana. While assessing the damage, we found Lisa Sausen, who needed help clearing a path around the washed out road by her home. A few hours of chainsaw work later, a new detour was created, allowing vehicle access to homes that we previously only accessible by foot, including our own. The damage at our home too great for the three of us to tackle, we gathered a few mementos scattered about the yard and headed back to the boat, with gifts of beer, cigars, guacamole and Lisa—who desperately wanted to catch the score of the Patriots game on our TV.

Monday, September 30

After a few days of being seen on a roof, it seemed people assumed we were actual roofers, so Monday morning we were immediately sent to find Sidney Weatherford, who was missing a portion of his roof. An easy job even for novices...other than the 30-knot winds and it being a two-story home. We had the roof dried in before lunch, and went looking for more work. With only a few hours before we had to begin cooking our second dinner for everyone, we found Troy Albury and followed him to his home to help repair and replace a small damaged section of his hardie board roof.

That afternoon found us cooking at the church again, this time spaghetti, garlic bread and a green salad for roughly 120 people. With one dinner service already under our belts, Monday's dinner was a much smoother operation. We enjoyed a few cold beers with the locals that hung around until we were done and turned in for the night.

Saturday, September 28

Arriving at Jackie and Andy's bright and early, we immediately got started finishing the other side of the roof while we still had Chris, who would be leaving midmorning to go help his family in Hope Town. The hard work done, Kevin and I cleaned up our mess on the ground while Cole assisted Andy with applying ice and water shield to the roof. By lunch, we had completed our first roof.

After a short break on the boat, we showered and headed to Donna and Charles Sands' home to begin prep work for that night's dinner. At 3 PM, we began cooking jambalaya, fried shrimp and coleslaw for what we believed would a crowd of around 80 people at the church where the community has set up a soup kitchen, feeding three meals a day to everyone on the island.

Notes from the Apocalypse

Tuesday, October 1

We started the morning on the roof at “Seas the Day,” the home of second-homeowner Michelle Ruiz, which she had lent to a crew from Caribbean Landscape helping clear debris from roads and homes on the island. We replaced a tarp that had blown free and moved a Port-A-John that had blown into her yard, then headed back to town. On our way, we found Andy Sands, again working on his home alone. With no other tasks assigned, we spent the afternoon wrecking out the mold-infested ceiling, floors and walls in the home and hauled everything off to one of the many burn piles set up on Guana Cay.

Jackie had insisted that she cook for us that evening, and cook she did. We enjoyed a feast of Bahamian delicacies—hog snapper, conch, and baked macaroni and cheese—before stumbling back to the boat.

Wednesday, October 2

Originally planning to leave on Thursday, we already had plans to meet up with Joe Warrington and the M/Y Melia—a 108-foot former supply boat turned yacht that had been providing relief to Marsh Harbour—to take on some fuel for our trip back to the states. Our day already shortened, we quickly installed a window unit and repaired a toilet for Glenda Snively, helped wreck out a damaged floor for Charles Sands, and headed south towards Hope Town to rendezvous with the Melia.

Many folks in town—particularly the Rastafarian Jamaican workers—had complained about the lack of fresh seafood available, so while waiting for the OK from the Melia to take fuel, we jumped in the Sea of Abaco around Scotland Cay and gathered up a handful of lobster and conch to take back to Guana. Getting back to the Orchid Bay docks after dark, we cleaned our catch—which we would distribute the following morning—and offloaded 60 gallons of diesel fuel for generators on the island.

Thursday, October 3

Our final day on Guana Cay was a shorter day, as we had to prepare the Papi for travel that afternoon. We installed a window unit in Tami Siewruk’s home, which she was going to be using to house more workers. Tami had taken charge of coordinating many of the relief efforts in Guana Cay and has done a marvelous job thus far issuing tasks to locals and volunteers, creating systems for issuing tools and generators for temporary use, and coordinating with people back in the states—like Ricky Sands and Katie Hoog, who have gathered and arranged delivery of an immense amount of supplies—to make sure Guana gets what it needs.

We finished the day by helping Lisa remove a refrigerator that had failed from the second floor of her home, and demolished and cleaned up the tennis court, which would be repurposed into a temporary medical clinic and outdoor shower facility.

We ate dinner once again with Jackie and Andy, but this time we did most of the cooking for them. After a dinner of grilled lobster and ribeye, we returned to the boat, and for the first time all week the fish were biting. We caught mangrove and mutton snapper until we ran out of bait, saving them in our cooler to give to the island in the morning as a final parting gift.

Friday, October 4

While leaving Guana Cay is never easy, Friday morning was especially tough. For the last week, we had worked on roofs, floors, plumbing systems and HVACs. We had cooked, cleaned, cleared roads and demolished tennis courts. We left with hope—the beloved fig tree remained, and had already sprouted new life—and the knowing that we did what we could in our time on the island. The rebuild will be long, but while the community is motivated to come out better than before, they will still need our help in the months and years ahead. Goodbyes are supposed to be hard—and this one sucked—but it was time to get home to our families. We only had a three-day boat ride to go.

Saturday, October 5 – Sunday, October 6

Just like days one and two in reverse, we navigated the locks through central Florida and arrived in Venice just before dark Saturday evening. Immediately upon docking at the Crows Nest Marina, we were hailed by a 40-foot trawler taking on water. We helped them tie up, hooked up a bilge pump and stabilized the vessel until Sea Tow arrived. Finally, our relief efforts for this trip were complete.

Sunday morning, we were greeted by an angry Gulf of Mexico and battled six-foot seas for most of the day before backing into our slip at Harbor Docks at 7 PM.

Walking in the Footsteps of Great Artists

Northwest Florida State College is excited to announce a tour of Spain called Walking in the Footsteps of Great Artists: An Artistic Tour of Spain. Dr. David Simmons, Professor of Humanities and Film Studies at NWFSC and occasional Beachcomber contributor, will lead the tour.

Dr. Simmons has previously led artistic tours of Italy, France, Germany/Austria/Czech Republic, and Scotland/Ireland.

The tour of Spain will be May 1-13, 2020 and will visit such sites as Malaga, Sevilla, Cordoba, Granada, Toledo, Madrid, El Escorial, Zaragoza, Montserrat, and Barcelona.

Participants will walk in the footsteps of great artists such as Picasso, El Greco, Goya, Salvador Dali, Gaudi and many others, standing before some of their greatest masterpieces.

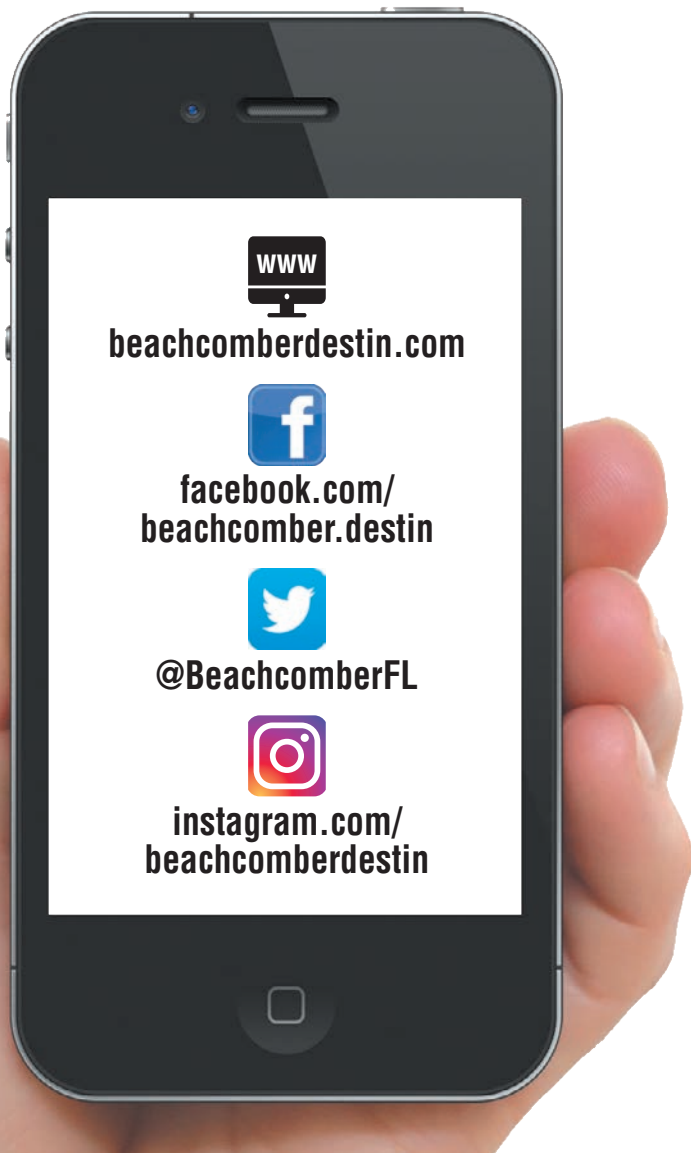

The tour will also explore architectural wonders like the Royal Palace (Alcazar) in Seville, El Escorial, and Barcelona Cathedral.

Finally, the tour will visit filming locations featured in Game of Thrones, Lawrence of Arabia, Star Wars: The Phantom Menace, Mission: Impossible 2, Indiana Jones and the Last Crusade, and others.

The tour is open to anyone who wants to join—students, faculty, and NWFSC staff, as well as members of the outside community, who can join the tour from anywhere in the world. Current NWFSC students have an opportunity to earn Humanities credits.

For more information on the tour, the public is invited to attend a Tour Information Meeting Thursday, Oct. 10, at 6 PM in the film classroom (Building 110, Room 328, in the Arts Wing of the Mattie Kelly Arts Center in Niceville). They can also email Dr. Simmons at simmons@nwfsc.edu.

Beachcomber Profiles* - Kevin Carson

HOMETOWN: From Memphis, Tennessee, but moved to Santa Rosa Beach six months ago. I'm calling my move to Santa Rosa Beach my retirement gig!

PROFESSION: Working musician.

AGE: Almost grown.

RECENT ACCOMPLISHMENTS: Recently released the single "Nobody Like You," available on iTunes and Spotify. There's also a video on YouTube.

PROFILE: I've been a working musician my entire adult life. As a bandleader for many years, I've toured throughout the U.S., Canada, Europe and Asia with such notables as Hootie and the Blowfish, Edwin McCain, Willie Nelson, Loverboy, and John Cafferty. These days you can find me doing solo acoustic shows on a beach somewhere.

It's so different playing solo gigs on an acoustic guitar rather than bass in a big band. But I'm loving it! Plus, I'm not dealing with any drug addicts, girlfriends or any other egotistical maniac's drama.

The music business has been very good to me. I've been all over the world and met all kinds of wonderful people. I've played big clubs, small beach bars, casinos, private parties, and concert festivals. Sometimes I feel like I'm on top of the world and other times like I am the wedding singer, but it's all good—it's all music, and I still love it!

I've written hundreds of songs and have four original CDs under my belt, including Greatest Hits (2009) and Jump In (Carson & Pool, 2001). Writing songs has been a major part of my musical endeavors. I look at it like this—it would be nice to have a song being played worldwide on the radio, but it's also rewarding when five or six people ask you to play one of your originals. People appreciating your music is really what it's all about for a songwriter and performer.

QUOTE: "For the love of music, turn it up!"

John Coltrane

Blue World

Impulse

It's Lost and Found time again in jazz. Blue World is a "previously unissued" set of Van Gelder studio recordings made in 1964 by saxophonist John Coltrane's famous quartet of that time—himself on tenor, McCoy Tyner (piano), Jimmy Garrison (bass) and Elvin Jones (drums). Reportedly excerpts from this session found their way into a French-Canadian film soundtrack, so at best it's mislaid, not lost. Like A Love Supreme, it's short (36 minutes), but concentrated Coltrane is better than hours of lesser musicians. There are multiple takes of several tunes—ballads, blues—the foursome in repose.

- Bruce Collier

Samantha Fish

Kill or Be Kind

Rounder

Blues guitarist-singer Samantha Fish can sing like the voice of your ex-girlfriend—the one you prayed you'd never see again—shouting across a barroom. She can also caress a note like Billie Holiday, and seduce you where you stand. And golly gee, can she play a guitar. Kill or Be Kind is her sixth album, pretty amazing for someone only 30 years old. Onstage photos show her half-dancing, half-throttling her instrument; these 11 songs perfectly illustrate how much juice she can squeeze out of it. Check out the YouTube video of her with Buddy Guy—he looks bewitched.

- Bruce Collier

Florian Noack

Profokiev – Visions Fugitives

La Dolce Vita

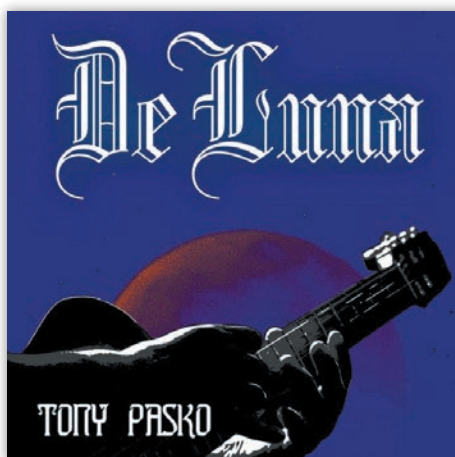

Florian Noack is a 29-year-old Belgian pianist who took up his instrument at age four. He's played and recorded Tchaikovsky, Chopin, Rachmaninoff, and now Sergei Prokofiev. Visions Fugitives offers 32 songs by the Russian composer, whose output included symphonies, operas (one based on War and Peace), music for ballets and films, and works for piano, woodwinds and strings. Prokofiev was passionately "modern," and this album offers a sampling showcasing the maestro's restless, widely varying tastes—a program piece, vignettes, etudes and sonatas. He was also a pianist, giving Noack a chance to display his formidable talents to maximum advantage.

- Bruce Collier

Tony Pasko

De Luna

A little context—the name De Luna is a nod to Tristán de Luna, the explorer and conquistador whose claim to fame is having the earliest multi-year European settlement in the continental United States...where Pensacola now stands. Like explorers before him, Pasko now calls Pensacola home. His music has been featured on a slew of A&E and Discovery Channel shows, and listening to De Luna, you'll understand exactly why. His ability to capture a mood, a style (in this case predominantly Spanish), and work in theatrical ebbs and flows makes him a desirable asset for the entertainment industry. And it makes De Luna an engaging album.

- Nikki Hedrick

Red and the Revelers

The Wizard and the Witch

Independent

Calling themselves a "coastal soul band," this Mobile-based group dips their toes into everything. As soon as you think you can safely declare a genre for descriptive purposes, a horn breakdown comes in and unravels your theory. So what are they? Call this Gumbo Music, a big wonderful dish full of tradition and influences slow-cooked to perfection. But like any gumbo, the roux is the most important part—and here that's Red Padilla's distinctive voice. P.S.—"Astaroth's Lament" should be on every adult's Halloween playlist.

- Nikki Hedrick

EDITOR'S CHOICE

World Spirituality Classics 2: The Time for Peace Is Now. Superb funk-and-soul-infused collection—13 songs that haven't been compiled to death (or at all?), and you'll wonder how you got by without any of them for this long.

Raphael Saadiq, Jimmy Lee. A chilling and heartbreaking elegy to his late brother, this may be Mr. Saadiq's best work since Tony! Toni! Toné! Sons of Soul (1993). "Rikers Island" fulfills Chuck D's "black CNN" aspirations, and it's so catchy you'll find yourself singing along...careful, white people.

The Beatles, Abbey Road (Super Deluxe Edition). Nothing much, just the best-loved band of all time's final masterpiece, and a couple discs worth of outtakes that make you feel like you're right there with 'em. Making a Yoko of yourself.

- Chris Manson

Pauseandplay.com – Since 1997, P&P has been the definitive place for music fans to find out when a new album is coming out. Also stay up on the latest reissues and music-related DVD/Blu-rays and books. Elton John says he uses Pauseandplay.com to keep track of new music, and Entertainment Weekly has included it on its list of "The 100 Greatest Web Sites," one of only 17 music sites to be selected.

PETS OF THE ISSUE

Angel the Cat and JoJo the Bird

Submitted by Dan Fugate and Edward McGrath, Blues Angel Music, Pensacola

"JoJo, the blue and gold macaw, is 22 years old and has been with us since the early days," Mr. Fugate tells Beachcomber. "Back then, Jim (a Blues Angel Music employee) would bring him to work every day and take him home at night. One day on the drive, JoJo flew out the window of Jim's car. Jim stopped and turned around immediately, but couldn't find JoJo."

"After searching, Jim made flyers and posted them around town... A couple of weeks went by before Jim got the call. A man and his daughter had found JoJo, but wanted to meet Jim to make sure he was a good person and suitable to care for the bird. The man and his daughter, who had fallen in love with JoJo, brought him to the store to meet Jim. After a chat, they reunited JoJo with Jim. He's lived in the store ever since."

One night when Blues Angel Music was still on Navy Blvd., Jim got a call about the alarm system in the store going off. "When he arrived, he found a kitten had fallen through the ceiling into the store," says Mr. Fugate.

"Angel has been cuddling on customers, lying in the sun and staring at the fish in the drum set aquarium since. She has never tried to get out the front door, even though one of her favorite sunning spots is right by the door."

FRIDAY, OCT. 11- SUNDAY, OCT. 13

A VINTAGE STREET MARKET
Northwest Florida Fairgrounds, Fort Walton Beach
defranceantiques@gmail.com

Mark and Stacie Hoard, owners of DeFrance Antiques, have taken on the huge task of starting a new antique show in Fort Walton Beach. A Vintage Street Market incorporates not just antiques but retro, vintage, farmhouse, shabby chic, coins, jewelry, man items and local artists. Vendors are expected from all over the southeast.

Annie Omar, owner and founder of Maison Blanche Vintage Paint Company, will be doing painting demonstrations on Saturday and two on Sunday, showing different techniques and finishes that can be used to refinish furniture pieces. A Q&A session will follow.

Ron Beeman will be on hand with examples of his work restoring cast iron pieces, with pieces in each stage of the restoration process. And, hopefully, Mr. Beeman will do a cooking demo as well. Plus Dave Harding (hand-carved wooden spoons and cutting boards), Angela Boudreaux (onsite glass and crystal repair), and Donnie Morgan (live music).

Interested vendors can call Ms. Hoard at 850-543-4579. Entry fee is $5 for the event. Food will be available.

A portion of the event proceeds will be donated to Opportunity Place Inc., a local housing facility that helps homeless individuals and families become self sufficient.

SATURDAY, OCT. 12

Tom Roston

The Most Spectacular Restaurant in the World
Abrams Press

To New Yorkers (present or former), The Most Spectacular Restaurant in the World means only one place—Windows on the World, crown jewel of the World Trade Center. It was a place they loved or loved to hate. It transcended all controversy on 9/11. Roston starts his story on that last day, then backtracks, chronicling restaurateur Joe Baum's stubborn vision of a gastronomical palace in the sky. It's birth revitalized downtown; its demise brought the city together to move forward. The decorations and food didn't please everyone, but if you could afford it, you went, until it vanished forever.

Alan Paul and Andy Aledort

Texas Flood: The Inside Story of Stevie Ray Vaughan

St. Martin's Press

The rise, fall and spectacular recovery of the guitar god, told mostly by the people who were there. The authors—guitar freaks in their own right—focus on celebrating the man and his music rather than dwelling on the (SPOILER ALERT) tragic ending. One of the most readable music bios of the year.

A Slug of Ice and Fire: Russian Vodka

By Bruce Collier

As someone who prizes full-flavored spirits like whiskey and gin, I sometimes wonder what all the fuss is about vodka. As Code of Federal Regulations, Chapter 27, Sec. 5.22(a)(1) puts it, “Vodka’ is neutral spirits so distilled, or so treated after distillation with charcoal or other materials, as to be without distinctive character, aroma, taste, or color.” Tempting.

Maybe the best way to “get” vodka is to check out product from a bona fide vodka culture. And that means Russia, where the “little water” (a literal translation of the word) means hospitality, fellowship, and something to drink with your pickled cucumbers, caviar, and salo (cured fatback). Here are five examples, all found locally. Prices are for a 750 ml bottle.

Russian Standard Gold

80 Proof
$24.99

Distilled in St. Petersburg. The website gets very science-y, with Professor Mendeleev and his determination of the exact balance of water and alcohol. The year 1894 is cited as the date of the “underpinning” of the Russian Standard for quality. It uses pure glacial water from Lake Ladoga, winter wheat grown in the black soil of the Russian steppes. It’s very romantic stuff.

Russian Standard is made according to an “ancient Siberian vodka recipe made popular by Peter the Great.” It contains extracts of “Siberian Golden Root,” which appears to be Siberian Rhodiola. Many health claims are made for this root, and as you might guess, they are not accepted by the scientific community, though homeopathy seems more open to its claims.

I tried it at room temperature, neat. The vodka has little or no scent; what there is smells of fresh, clean water. The body is slightly oily, with a creamy quality and warmth rather than burn. There’s an unsweetened coffee cream aftertaste on the finish, a hint of orange peel. It does not taste like alcohol.

Beluga Noble

$28.99

Triple distilled with Siberian spring water, produced at Mariinsk, Russia. The label advises, “best consumed with caviar.” Tasted chilled, neat. Faintly fruity, mineral wet-stone scent. Oily and dense body. Taste: again with the whipped cream, almost a marshmallow fluff, with a slight vanilla sugar sweetness. Gentle warmth, a good slow sipper. Nothing harsh about it.

Hammer & Sickle

80 Proof
$21.99

Chilled, neat. Distilled from wheat “hand-cleared in the Black Earth region” and distilled and filtered six times. Black Earth region is an area of extremely rich and fertile soil the western section of the former U.S.S.R. Any smell is almost nonexistent—it’s astringent, a little wet mineral scent. The body is oily (less so than Beluga), starchy. There’s a bit more of a burn, and a faint unsalted butter finish.

Zyr

$27.99

Wheat and rye blend, harvested from good old “rich black soil,” yada yada. The label asserts: “Nine filtrations, five distillations and a three-stage taste test,” which made me wonder if it would have any taste. I drank it chilled, neat. There was vanilla cream, then lemon zest—but only after after it warmed a little—and citrus pith. It was a good lesson—not all vodka tastes best frozen or even chilled.

Stolichnaya

$16.99

Stoli first came to the U.S. in 1972, via a trade deal with Pepsi Cola. Since the U.S.S.R. broke up there are actually “two” companies—it’s disputed—one owned by the Russian state and one privately owned. The former is entirely produced in Russia.

The latter is in Latvia, using Latvian water but Russian (“certified alpha grade”) alcohol. Concede that it’s Russian—that label is iconic.

When I lived in New York in the 1980s, if you wanted to pass as a sophisticate you had a choice—Stolichnaya, Absolut (Sweden) or Finlandia (guess). I also remember that in 1983, when the Soviet Russian military downed a Korean Airlines jet—with 269 passengers aboard—Stolichnaya was removed from many New York bars and liquor stores. Interestingly, the legendary Russian Tea Room did not join the boycott—they were founded by émigré Tsarists, not civilian-shooting Communists, they said.

I tasted this chilled, neat. Nose: clean wet stone scent, like rocks in a stream, and a hint of freshly cleaned swimming pool and citrus furniture polish. Taste: powdered sugar taste at the edges, and that creamy, oily body that chilled vodka seems to have. Grapefruit pith aftertaste.

With all that marketing emphasis on “purity” and simple ingredients, it’s not surprising that Russian vodka culture stresses drinking the stuff neat.

FRESH SEAFOOD?

One of the first questions people ask when they visit our area is “How can we be sure we’re getting fresh seafood?”

That’s an excellent question. In the state of Florida, even though it is surrounded by water, more than 90% of the seafood sold this year will be imported from other countries.

Throughout the United States, the huge majority of seafood is imported. Most of it is mislabeled. Frozen seafood is sold as “fresh” and imported seafood is sold as “local”. According to Oceana, 93% of fish sold as red snapper is actually some other species. 57% of tuna sold at sushi bars throughout the country is not tuna. Most of the tilapia served in this country comes from Viet Nam and Thailand and much of it is farmed in waters with sewage run-off and the source of feed is pig feces.

Harbor Docks has been selling fish through its wholesale market since 1981. We sell to markets across the United States and Canada. We also sell to select restaurants along the Gulf Coast. Harbor Docks contracts with over 100 commercial boats to ensure that we have an adequate supply of fresh fish.

Makeup Good, Hackers Bad, Jury Still Out on Phones

By Dawn Bright

Dear Dawn,
My Facebook account recently got hacked. What a hassle! What is wrong with people?!

- Valerie B. from Rosemary Beach

I was also recently hacked, Valerie. I was completely tricked into believing a message from a friend saying I was in a video he was sending a link to. It came from someone I used to perform with years ago, which made it feasible I could be in the video. So without a thought, I clicked the link and BOOM! Hacked. Had to change a zillion passwords and send messages to all my friends to ignore anything coming from me.

I just wish those people who have the brains to hack would put their brains to better use. A close family member passed away last weekend due to the ravages of Alzheimer's. Why don't these brainiacs figure out a cure instead of this nonsense? Wouldn't it be something to have your claim to fame be "I cured a disease" rather than "I hacked into strangers' accounts"? That would be my preference, but I was raised by parents who taught me right from wrong, good from bad, and all about respect. Which is probably what these hackers are lacking in their lives.

Fix your moral compass, hackers. Fix it and do some good for the world. Then and only then will you have something to brag about.

Dear Dawn,
This morning as I was going into work, I had to walk around a guy who had stopped dead in his tracks to read a message on his phone. Why are we so addicted to our phones?

- Max H. from Eglin AFB

I have wondered that myself. What did we do before we had cell phones? I was on a trip recently and counted 40 people out of 50 sitting in the waiting area on their phones. And the other 10 were playing games on them. I can't even remember what it's like to not have a cell phone at my fingertips.

Plus, if I want to know something, I can know it immediately. There's no waiting to get to the library or open an encyclopedia. Most kids these days don't even know what an encyclopedia is! And if someone needs to talk to me, even if it's to convey something unimportant, they can do it immediately.

Have you ever started off for work and realized you've forgotten your phone? I have, and I immediately panic and have to turn around to get that phone. It's a weird world we live in, Max, a really weird world.

Dear Dawn,
I love makeup. When I run out of something, I can't just go buy the thing I'm out of—I buy other stuff, too. You wouldn't believe the drawers full of makeup I have. What is wrong with me?

- Shannon M. from Navarre

Our faces are canvases, Shannon. You wouldn't just have one tube of paint for a canvas, would you? Unless you were a monochromatic artist. These artists use one color to create a visual effect and enhance the textures and nuances of a surface to bring forward a wide range of emotions and meanings. I looked at some images of their paintings, and they were pretty interesting.

But we aren't artists, Shannon. We're just normal people who like to paint a variety of colors on our faces. As long as your purchasing habits aren't sending you to the poor house, I don't see a thing wrong with drawers full of makeup or anything else you like. Just be yourself, Shannon—you're the only one who can be.

AQUARIUS

JAN. 21 - FEB. 19

Although you have shown yourself to be rather smart and creative in the past, this October is not the month to try to re-create any of that. You would be smart, rather, to stay inside and do as little interacting with others as possible. Read books, watch movies, listen to some tunes, but DO NOT, under any circumstances, venture outside. And best of luck to you.

ARIES

MAR. 21 - APR. 20

The generosity you have shown in the past is paying off again. This, plus your positive attitude, ensures you will always be successful in your ventures. Not just some ventures either, but ALL ventures. Keep up the good work, Aries...your success is an inspiration to all.

GEMINI

MAY 22 - JUNE 21

If only you could slow down, Gemini. Your busy lifestyle, described as “chaotic” by many, isn’t getting any less cluttered with all these new fall projects. You should really finish what you started this past summer before you move on to the next clump of madness. Overstimulation is not all that it’s hyped up to be, Gemini, so in the words of the great Taylor Swift, “You need to calm down!”

LEO

JULY 23 - AUG. 23

It’s admirable that despite your lack of friends, or anything resembling a social life, you remain so confident in yourself. Admirable, but it also drives any potential friends away. No one likes a know-it-all. No one likes a one-better-upper. No one likes a let-me-tell-you-how-great-I-am personality. Open yourself up to finding out who you REALLY are, Leo, and maybe you won’t be so lonely.

LIBRA

SEPT. 24 - OCT. 23

It’s your birthday month, and you are once again exuding so much brightness that everyone around you has to wear shades. This is the month where your focus is really going to pay off. Again. Your achievements are too great to list. Balance and harmony abound. And those colliding planets are spattering nothing but greatness.

SAGITTARIUS

NOV. 23 - DEC. 21

Your love of adventure and need to try new things is going to be the end of you, Sagittarius. The stars are spelling out DISASTER as clear as a bell. Suggest trying something new from the comfort of your easy chair. Maybe one of those shopping networks, or just watch a few game shows. And that thing you do every Friday afternoon? Try being on time for once, or you may find that’s over for you, too.

PISCES

FEB. 20 - MAR. 20

It looks like you’re back in that needy boat of yours where you are constantly demanding support from family and friends. But again, you need to ignore this tendency to plead for support and take care of this by yourself. Leave everyone you know out of your current predicament. October will flow smoothly if you do.

TAURUS

APR. 21 - MAY 21

Taurus, it’s commendable that you are attempting to make new friends this month. Especially since you’ve pretty much alienated all of your old friends with your bull-headed nature. It’s good that you’re trying, but don’t be surprised if this all turns against you. You have a reputation, after all, and people really don’t change. Especially you.

CANCER

JUNE 22 - JULY 22

It’s been a rough few months, Cancer, given the end of one relationship and the numerous attempts to start another. Your problem seems to be the unbearable mood swings you display on a daily basis. Wouldn’t it be better to try a steady hand rather than the explosive nature you usually present? Take a step back and re-evaluate, and maybe next month will be more rewarding for you.

VIRGO

AUG. 24 - SEPT. 23

You still don’t get it, do you, Virgo? You are still over-analyzing and feeding into that perfectionist nature. This hasn’t worked for you so far, so why do you continue? Just jump in! Give it a try! Quit worrying about whether it’s perfect or what other people think. It’s sad that you’re so lonely, but you are doing it to yourself. Those colliding planets? It’s your own doing.

SCORPIO

OCT. 24 - NOV. 22

Your determination and attention to detail should pay off this month, Scorpio, but unfortunately will not. It’s just too much. No one can tolerate your bossy nature. October is just not going to be a good month for you, and you’ll be drowning in misery. Suggest hiding out for a little while longer, and maybe next month the stars will line up. Maybe.

CAPRICORN

DEC. 22 - JAN. 20

Those whacked-out stars have finally taken a calming turn to the right, Capricorn. It’s time to venture out and try something new, but be sure to do it on your own. Do not, under any circumstances, try to bring anyone else into this thing you do. You are naturally ambitious, but that sometimes means you jump in without having a clue. Which is fine, but do it alone. Just saying.
